Huntington moved in new directions in the 1960s

Heritage Days began in 1963 under the direction of a steering committee of the Huntington County Chamber of Commerce in conjunction with downtown businesses. Heritage Days was first organized by the Huntington County Heritage Days Association which had disbanded.

The Chamber learned that Heritage Days would not continue unless it assumed the leadership role, and the Heritage Days steering committee still organizes and oversees the event each year in June. The first "Chief of the Flint Springs Tribe," part of Heritage Days celebrations, was recognized in 1969.

Huntington Plaza Shopping Center was dedicated May 1, 1963. Its development was aided by the Chamber. The first store to open was Kroger's on March 13, 1963 followed by Super X, April 1; Guarantee Auto, April 3; W.T. Grant, April 18 and Juergens Paint and Wallpaper also on April 18.

In 1965 two major projects involved the Chamber. Construction on the Huntington Dam & Reservoir (now Roush Lake) and the four-lane U.S. 24 bypass began. The Chamber also sponsored the dedication of the Huntington Dam and Reservoir in 1971.

Housing in Huntington became a focus of the 1960s and the Chamber began the Annual Parade of Homes, accenting new construction in the county. Housing additions were created and recognized through the Annual Parade of Homes.

Genesis Pest Services to the rescue ...

Now that we are in the full swing of warmer weather, it's time for those pesky little annoyances to come out. What we are speaking of are the ants, spiders, roaches, ticks, mosquitos and more. If you are experiencing any of these annoyances, give Geoff Horner, owner of Genesis Pest Services, a call.

Horner, a Huntington University graduate, said, "I started Genesis Pest Services on March 21, 2019 with the goal of working in a field that I have enjoyed since middle school, and because I have a desire to help people. I saw people paying for services they really did not need."

"Previously I was a youth pastor and felt called to pest control as a vocation from God. I've learned from working for four years at a large pest control corporation, and now five years on my own, that I can handle about any situation that comes my way. If I am not able to do the work, I know people that can," explained Horner.

Horner said, "I have always loved bugs and as a middle schooler, I entered contests at the state level where I competed in entomology competitions where students were challenged to name bugs and share information about them. I finished fifth in the state one year while our team finished second. We were always in the top ten," stated Horner.

"We can help alleviate the pests in your home to include ants, beetles, roaches, spiders, bed bugs and more. I can now spray for ticks and mosquitos," according to Horner. Horner went on to say, "Since I have been studying bugs for most of my life, I know what to look for when entering homes or businesses. I can diagnose termite infestation, but will typically turn this treatment over to another expert I know in the field."

"As an exterminator, I pride myself as a local resident that is credible and trustworthy. You will find that I am timely, and if I am going to be late, clients can expect a phone call from me. My business is also bonded and insured," said Horner.

Horner explained, "I do not have contracts with my clients because I want them to have the flexibility to do what is right for them." With that said, "I do offer agreements where I can service their homes or businesses monthly, quarterly, semi-annually, annually, or in about any increment the client needs. I will not leave until the job is done correctly."

"I do residential and commercial properties to include warehouses, churches and not-for-profit locations. I've recently picked up warehouses because of the infiltration of roaches. They seem to be prevalent in the warehouse setting. I am also fluent in Spanish for those businesses that need someone to communication with the Spanish population," said Horner.

Genesis Pest Services is located in Markle and offers free estimates. You can reach them by calling (260) 227-0742, email geoff@genesispestservices.com or by visiting their website at genesispestservices.com.

Entrepreneurial 'Meet and Greet' in Markle

Markle Church of Christ, 455 East Morse Street, Markle, was the location of the Huntington County Chamber of Commerce's fourth entrepreneurial gathering 'Meet & Greet.' The event introduced two Markle area businesses that were begun by entrepreneurs in the Markle area. Nadean's Cakes/Cookies, Catering, catered the event.

Steve Kimmel welcomed those in attendance and said "The goal of the Council is to grow entrepreneurial wealth, and encourage more entrepreneurs to open businesses or to attract more businesses to open in our county." He continued, "New businesses help to bring growth and development to the community with the support of residents and existing businesses; in other words, we grow the community."

The entrepreneurial 'Meet & Greet' featured three entrepreneurs who spoke about their businesses. Ron Current, the plant manager for Sortera Alloys, and Amber and Justin Miller of BroxonBerry. Both are Markle area startup businesses.

Sortera Alloys brings state-of-the-art artificial intelligence, image/data analytics and advanced sensors to the industrial scrap metal recycling and re-use industry.

Current, explained that Sortera is a "technology sandwich," and uses a different method of thinking when it comes to recycling. He explained, "This disruptive technology drives new paradigms by generating new high purity recycled products through advanced industrial scale sortation methods. This creates high purity recycled and up-cycled metal feedstocks from existing scrap streams and enables the domestic supply of metals and alloys ready for use in high-quality domestic manufacturing, boosting the strength of the circular economy." He said, "Sortera's vision is to enable 100% reuse of metals removed from end-of-life products for manufacturing of similar products."

Amber and Justin Miller then spoke about BroxonBerry, a small 4/10 of an acre farm, where certified naturally grown produce is farmed, sold and distributed. Amber started BroxonBerry in 2016 with the vision on replacing her full-time job that did not allow time for family.

A wide range of fresh produce is grown for sale at the farm, at local restaurants, grocery stores and the Farmer's Market on Barr Street, Fort Wayne. Leafy green vegetables, carrots, zucchini, pumpkins and more are grown at BroxonBerry. A weekly box order on the farm and online sales are also available. The couple supply locals with produce nine months of the year. The business is CNG Certified.

Amber's dream quickly grew into a business that became too large for her to handle by herself, so Justin joined her, leaving his full-time job.

They say, "What keeps us going is our customer feedback. The job is not always unicorns and rainbows, but hearing how what they grow has affected someone in one way or another is a powerful motivator."
